NPTC HONORS 59 CERTIFIED TRANSPORTATION PROFESSIONALS® (CTP)

FIFTY-NINE TRANSPORTATION PROFESSIONALS ACHIEVED THE PRESTIGIOUS DESIGNATION OF CERTIFIED TRANSPORTATION PROFESSIONAL® (CTP) by the NPTC Institute, the educational and professional certification arm of the National Private Truck Council (NPTC). The graduates were honored during a ceremony at the Annual Education Management Conference and Exhibition held April 24-26, 2016 in Cincinnati.

Since the CTP designation was first introduced in 1993, nearly 1,550 fleet and transportation professionals have earned the right to add CTP after their name. CTPs are raising industry standards, and in turn, increasing the respect and prestige of the fleet and transportation profession.

"These new Certified Transportation Professionals have demonstrated the knowledge and ability to understand complex operational and regulatory issues, identify and evaluate potential costs and savings, and develop systems and practices that best meet their company's transportation needs and objectives," said Mari Roberts, CTP, Chair of the NPTC Institute Board of Governors that oversees the program and Director, LD&T

Top CTP Grad: Program Gives Broader Business Understanding

Yeah, that's what they tell me," this year's top Certified Transportation Professional (CTP) program graduate, Joe Sponseller of Dean Foods, says with a laugh when it's brought up that he earned that honor for the Class of 2016.

As is often heard with the top grads of the National Private Truck Council's (NPTC) CTP program, Sponseller didn't expect to be at the head of the class. He remembers telling colleagues at Dean Foods that he was "just was hoping to pass." The program opened his eyes, he says, to the many business facets of trucking and transportation.

"It was a good opportunity for me to hear different opinions and get a lot of information across the industry that I hadn't picked up on," Sponseller says. "It gives you a better understanding, talking with people who work in different businesses—construction, food and produce, less-than-truckload, all sorts of different things where you may not really think of the challenges that they run into.

"So it's a great opportunity to network, learn a ton and understand more of the industry as a whole," he continues.

Now age 26, Sponseller joined Dean, a dairy foods producer and distributor, after he finished undergrad in 2012 and works out of the company's office in Franklin Park, IL, just outside Chicago. He now works in logistics support for Dean's approximately 4,800 trucks; Dean operates one of the nation's largest reefer truck fleets and is the largest processor and distributor of dairy products in the U.S.

But his first experience with trucking and fleet was back where he grew up a little farther north in Gurnee, IL, on breaks from attending college one state over at St. Ambrose University in Iowa. "Over the summers and on some of the breaks, I would go home and work at a local beverage distributor there in my county. That was my first touch of the trucking and distribution industry," Sponseller contends, and says it gave him a better understanding of business.

"I worked in a warehouse at night loading trucks for delivery. Then I'd work with the drivers going stop to stop unloading product, collecting payment, that kind of thing," he continues. "Working on the trucks back then kind of changed the way I thought about business—just in terms of the movement of products and the flow of goods across the country. After I graduated from college, I knew I wanted to get into some sort of supply chain/distribution-type job."

Through his work at Dean Foods for the last several years and his experiences gained through the CTP program, he said he's realized how much transportation and logistics have changed in recent years with the use of technology—and how much more they could change now by utilizing that technology to its potential.

"The way the industry is changing to be technology- and data-driven really piqued my interest," Sponseller says. He now works in data and logistics support and is involved in a large project at Dean as the company is putting in new telematics systems across the fleet.

And he expects good things going forward from his career in transportation and logistics, he says, as he's working to lay the groundwork for it. In another big move, he got married last year, and there's something else, it being sometimes easy to get out of shape working at a desk or in various jobs in the trucking industry: to keep his edge, Joe is getting into competitive weightlifting.

"Within the past couple months I picked up power lifting, and I'll be competing in my first power-lifting meet in June," he notes.

NPTC/J.J. KELLER 2016 WEBCAST SERIES

THIS MONTH, NPTC AND J. J. KELLER & ASSOCIATES WILL HOST A WEBCAST, FREE TO ALL NPTC MEMBERS, ON THE FOLLOWING SUBJECTS. To reserve your spot at one or more of these webcasts or if you wish to download a previous earlier webcast, click here.

Wednesday, July 20 Drug & Alcohol Testing (Hair Follicle Testing)

Among the most frequently cited violations found during DOT compliance reviews are violations of the drug and alcohol testing regulations. Pre-employment, random, and post-accident testing are always near the top of the list. With thousands of dollars in fines, public safety, and CSA scores at risk, motor carriers need to understand their role in preventing the use of drugs and abuse of alcohol by commercial drivers. In this webcast, we will examine what the regulations require and how fleets are coping with the rules and even going the extra mile – by incorporating hair follicle testing into their compliance protocols. Our special fleet speaker will be Kris Kolbe, CTP, Manager, Transportation Compliance, Bridgestone Americas Tire Operations, LLC.

Thursday, July 21 The Aging Driver Workforce & Worker's Compensation (Driver Wellness)

With an the average age of the driver population now exceeding 50 in many fleets, safety officials are witnessing an acceleration of healthcare and worker's compensation costs. How do leading fleets protect their investment in the driver? This webcast will examine the effectiveness of driver training, education and the incorporation of effective health and wellness programs. Ruffin Price, Transportation Safety and Training Lead, Harris Teeter, Inc., will be the featured fleet speaker.
