WELCOME BACK TO CINCINNATI

NPTC 2019 ANNUAL EDUCATION MANAGEMENT CONFERENCE AND EXHIBITION

On behalf of the NPTC Board of Directors, the NPTC Institute Board of Governors, the Conference Planning Committee, and the entire membership of NPTC, we are pleased to extend a personal welcome, greetings, and thanks for attending NPTC 2019.

You are among some 1200 of the nation's best private fleet professionals who are registered for this event. Over 160 of the industry's top-tier supplier/vendors have exhibit booths in our world-class Exhibition and Trade Show Exhibit Hall which, as one of the largest association-sponsored events of exhibitors in the trucking industry, is an enormous learning experience in itself and a great resource for fleets in helping shape their buying decisions.

Thanks to the leadership of some 45 Fleet and Allied/Supplier company member representatives serving on the Conference Planning Committee, nearly three dozen workshops and breakfast roundtable discussions are offered. Over the next three days, some 60 expert private fleet practitioners will serve as speakers and panelists showcasing the latest, most innovative "best ideas" and state-of-art business practices in the private fleet community.

A strong take-away message from NPTC 2019 is that private fleets are a huge competitive advantage, particularly in the current market of booming demand for truck freight services, skyrocketing outside carrier rates, tight capacity, and extreme driver shortages. Conference presenters on numerous critical topics of interests will show while there never has been a better time to "sell" the justification of a private fleet, fleet managers must constantly "make the case" to upper management with current data documenting the comparative cost and customer service advantages of the private fleet versus alternative outside service providers.

Reward and recognition ceremonies highlight NPTC annual conferences and 2019 will be no exception.

At the Kick-Off Brunch on Sunday, April 14th, opening general session, NPTC will recognize Professional Leadership award winners for the year following by the graduation ceremony of the CTP Class of 2019—more than 85 new Certified Transportation Professionals. Driver Hall of Fame and Fleet Safety Award honorees will be recognized at the luncheon ceremony held on Monday, April 15th.

NPTC 2019 is a great opportunity for networking. Our slogan, "You Must Be Present to Win" sums up the essential value proposition of being at the conference in person and experiencing first-hand the culture of mutual trust and confidence. You will meet hundreds of private fleet practitioners who, like yourself, are on a career-long journey of continuous improvement for their companies and professional development for themselves.

Thanks for being here. We greatly appreciate your participation. Best wishes for a most productive and enjoyable experience.

Driver Compensation: Incentives, Bonuses and Recognition

Nick Cindrich, CTP, CDS, Director, Enterprise Safety & DOT Compliance, CVS Health

Kirby Hargis, CTP, Manager of Transportation, LiquidPower Specialty Products, Inc.

Mike Walker, Director of Transportation, Metal Sales Manufacturing Corporation

The $100,000-a-year truck driver is coming to a fleet near you. Although for the majority of truck drivers, pay remains well below competitive levels, in fact the Bureau of Labor Statistics lists the median annual wage for truck drivers at just $41,000. That's not enough to attract and retain the best drivers on the market. In fact, fleets are considering hefty compensation packages, innovative pay structures, incentives and bonuses, advanced career placement strategies and other non-traditional assistance including strategies to cope with the Tax Cuts and Jobs Act enacted in late 2017 that swept away the allowance for truck drivers to take an income deduction for daily expenses on meals and incidentals, aka the per diem deduction. Come learn how you can stay ahead of the pack.

Preparing for the Invasion of the Millennial Workforce

Shelli Fridenstine, Corporate Director of Human Resources, Ross Environmental Services, Inc.

As we scour the market-place for new talent, we increasingly face the multi-generational workforce. Many private fleet managers complain about the relatively new challenge of managing millennials, those workers born between 1982 and 2004. These workers are typically more tech-savvy than previous generations, yet they are often perceived as markedly independent and stubborn. Whether in the cab or in the office, how can we work with this latest generation to support their goals, leverage their strengths and create excellence in the private fleet?

Dana learned to drive hauling produce, fruit and vegetables along with restaurant supplies in LaCrosse, WI.

He was twice elected to the drivers' committee as a driver representative to work with management and the drivers on policies and discipline. He has also served as a driver trainer. He is active in his community helping to raise money for public parks and recreational facilities.

He began his driving career at the age of 16 hauling tobacco to Dillon, SC. A year later, he joined H&J Poultry. When he turned 18, he earned his Class A license and starting driving a tractor-trailer for H&J. When Joe turned 21 he went to work for Johnson Construction Company, driving a tandem dump truck work in the coal fields of West Virginia. A year later he went to work for National Health Labs. He worked there until he went to work for Virginia Appalachian Trucking Company hauling furniture to the West Coast and hauling produce back, a job he held until he joined Unifi.
